Alpha measures the difference between a fund's actual returns and its expected performance, given its level of risk (as measured by beta).

Beta is a measure of a fund's sensitivity to market movements. A portfolio with a beta greater than 1 is more volatile than the market, and a portfolio with a beta less than 1 is less volatile than the market.

Standard deviation is a statistical measure of the volatility of the fund's or index's returns.

Sharpe ratio uses standard deviation and excess return to determine reward per unit of risk.

R-squared measures the degree to which a fund's behavior is related to an external benchmark index.

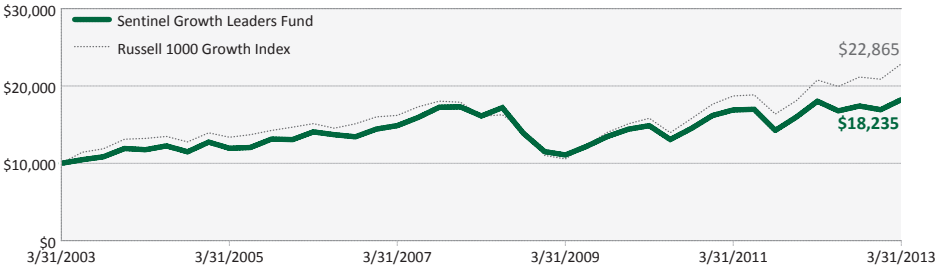
Growth of a $10,000 Investment (Class A shares without sales charge)

3/31/2003 - 3/31/2013



The graph is for illustrative purposes only and reflects the hypothetical growth of a $10,000 investment with all distributions reinvested. Past performance does not predict future results. Performance shown in the graph and calendar year total returns reflects expenses and management fees, but does not reflect sales charges. If performance had included the appropriate sales charge, returns would be lower.

Data shown is historical performance for each share class and reflects reinvested distributions. Investment return and principal value will vary so that you may have a gain or loss when you sell shares. Past performance does not guarantee future results; current performance may be higher or lower than data quoted. For performance current to the most recent month-end, visit www.sentinelinvestments.com.

Large company stocks as a group could fall out of favor with the market and underperform investments that focus on small and mid-sized company stocks.

The Fund is non-diversified and will hold fewer securities than a diversified portfolio. The Fund may be more affected by the performance of a particular stock, either positively or negatively, than a more broadly diversified fund.

1. Performance of Class A shares reflects the current maximum sales charge. Performance of Class A shares from their inception on March 17, 2006 to June 29, 2012 has not been adjusted to reflect the lower maximum 12b-1 fee in effect prior to March 17, 2006 or the decrease in the maximum 12b-1 fee, effective June 30, 2012, from 0.30% to 0.25%. If it had, those returns would be higher.
2. Performance of the Class C shares prior to their inception on March 17, 2006 is based on the performance of the Bramwell Focus Fund, but reflects the higher ongoing expenses of Class C shares.
3. Performance of the Class I shares from March 17, 2006 to their inception on August 27, 2007 is based on the performance of the Fund's Class A shares, restated to reflect that Class I shares are not subject to a sales charge. Performance of the Class I shares prior to March 17, 2006 is based on the performance of the Bramwell Focus Fund. Only eligible investors may purchase Class I shares, as described in the prospectus.

The Russell 1000 Growth Index is an unmanaged index that measures the performance of the large-cap growth segment of the US equity universe. It includes those Russell 1000 companies with higher price-to-book ratios and higher forecasted growth values. An investment cannot be made directly in an index.

The Standard & Poor's 500 Index is an unmanaged index of 500 widely held US equity securities chosen for market size, liquidity, and industry group representation. An investment cannot be made directly in an index.
